Can your child afford not to have a college education?

ADVANCED EDUCATION does not miraculously confer health, wealth and wisdom. But it helps-as millions have learned. Thus, every year, more and more high school graduates enroll in the particular college program best designed to develop their abilities.

U. S. Census statistics show that the cost of college is returned many times over in extra earnings in later years.

In an average lifetime, college graduates earn $100,000 more than those with a high school education only. And this takes no account of the extra satisfactions a college education can give.

One way to help make sure your children will have the education they need is through Metropolitan's Education-

2 Pershing St., 1st Floor

Estate Builder Plan.

This policy may be taken out shortly after a child's birth. Of course, the younger the child, the lower the premium. Then, on maturity of the policy, the amount is available for the child's education. For a slight additional cost, the policy can even provide for the waiver of future premiums to maturity date in the event of the father's death.

And still another advantage to this Metropolitan Education-Estate Builder Plan is the privilege of conversion:

When the policy matures, if the money is not then needed for education, each $1,000 of the plan can be converted into $5,000 of Limited Payment Life insurance. The premium remains unchanged and no medical examination is required.

Thus, this converted insurance becomes a ready-made insurance estate for your child's start in family life.

wisdom. But it helps-as millions have learned. Thus, every year, more and more high school graduates enroll in the particular college program best designed to develop their abilities. U. S. Census statistics show that the cost of college is returned many times over in extra earnings in later years. In an average lifetime, college graduates earn $100,000 more than those with a high school education only. And this takes no account of the extra satisfactions a college education can give. One way to help make sure your chil-

2 Pershing St., 1st Floor

1 Madison Avenue, New York 10, N.Y.

This policy may be taken out shortly after a child's birth. Of course, the younger the child, the lower the premium. Then, on maturity of the policy, the amount is available for the child's education. For a slight additional cost, the policy can even provide for the waiver of future premiums to maturity date in the event of the father's death.

And still another advantage to this Metropolitan Education-Estate Builder Plan is the privilege of conversion:

When the policy matures, if the money is not then needed for education, each $1,000 of the plan can be converted into $5,000 of Limited Payment Life insurance. The premium remains unchanged and no medical examination is required.

Thus, this converted insurance becomes a ready-made insurance estate for your child's start in family life.

Planning for your children's education is not a thing that you should put off. It is never too soon to prepare for the costs of a college education.

That is why it is a good idea to talk to your Metropolitan Representative as soon as possible. He will be happy to explain how a Metropolitan Education-Estate Builder Plan can belp you give your children the advanced education they will need.

Stoney River Dam To Become Lake For Trout

Recreation Area Development Seen

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)-The West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. has under consideration a proposal that would turn over to the state Conservation Commission one of the largest trout lakes in the eastern part of the country.

State Conservation Director Warden M. Lane said Sunday that he, Gov. Cecil H. Underwood and Conservation Commissioner C. R. Sullivan went to New York last Monday to discuss negotiation of a 99-year lease on an 800 - acre Stoney River Reservoir in Grant County. 10 miles from Blackwater Falls State Park near Davis, Tucker County

Lane said they told company President David Luke West Virginia could use the lake as a public recreational area and would develop it for tenting, sailboating, picnicking and fishing.

Lane said if the lease is worked out, the commission would remove the present population of rough fish and restock the lake

This could serve as one of the biggest shots in the arm the park at Blackwater Falls and fishing in the area have received in the history of park vacationing and the inception of trout lake fishing in West Virginia," Lane added.

Stoney River Dam To Become Lake For Trout

Recreation Area Development Seen

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)-The West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. has under consideration a proposal that would turn over to the state Conservation Commission one of the largest trout lakes in the eastern part of the country.

State Conservation Director Warden M. Lane said Sunday that he, Gov. Cecil H. Underwood and Conservation Commissioner C. R. Sullivan went to New York last Monday to discuss negotiation of a 99-year lease on an 800 - acre Stoney River Reservoir in Grant County. 10 miles from Blackwater Falls State Park near Davis, Tucker County.

Lane said they told company President David Luke West Virginia could use the lake as a public recreational area and would develop it for tenting, sailboating, picnicking and fishing

Lane said if the lease is worked out, the commission would remove the present population of rough fish and restock the lake

This could serve as one of the biggest shots in the arm the park at Blackwater Falls and fishing in the area have received in the history of park vacationing and the inception of trout lake fishing in West Virginia," Lane added.

Students at the San Francisco State College say the gamest man on the campus is Prof. Robert Stewart.

Left speechless and helpless by poliomyolitis in 1952, Dr. Stewart regained his voice after three long, hard years, and now delivers lec-tures from a contour chair in the class room. He is 48 years old and a professor of psychology and education.

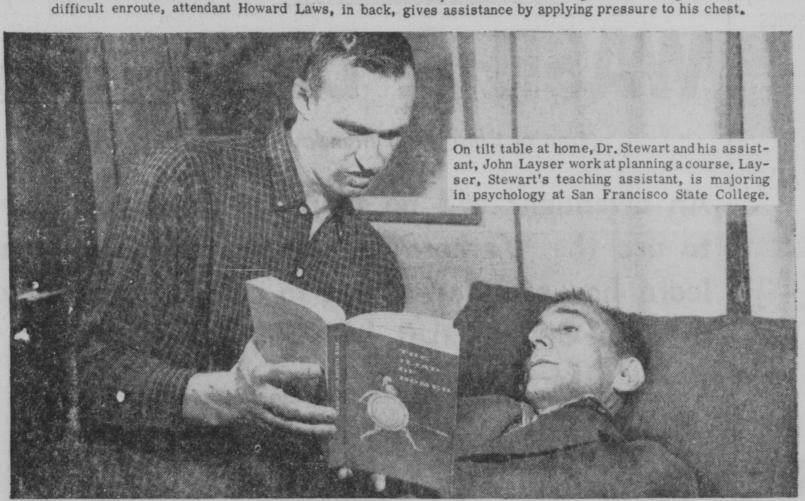

Promptly each Tuesday and Thursday he arrives at the Education building in his chauffeured automobile. He is carried to his office where his assistant, John Layser, and attendant, Howard Laws, strap a respirator on his chest.

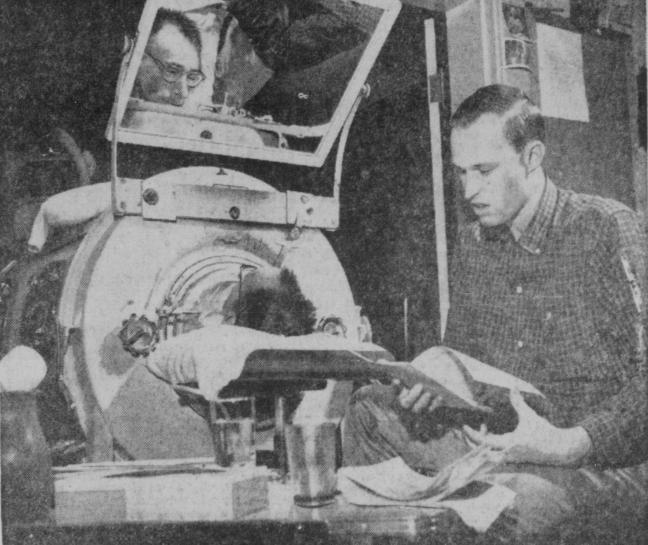

After a few deep breaths he lights a cigarette and begins preparations for his forthcoming class. Dr. Stewart has nothing but praise for his helpers and students. The students are enthusiastic in their praise of his work and fortitude. The lectures are well attended.

The Kurds' Dream And Moscow's Pros

What are the Russians up to with the Kurds in the Middle East? The Kurds are not Arabs. They occupy high mountain country in portions of Iraq, Iran and Turkey, and include many nomadic tribesmen.

They are a spectacular fighting people who seem little changed from their great ancestor, Saladin of the Crusade period. Their dream of a "Kurdistan" - a country of their own carved out of the territories of their nominal rulers is a very old one.

The Communists' encouragement of this dream isn't new, either. Moscow has always realized that the nationalist aspirations of the Kurds might some day be useful as a catspaw. What is new is the news from Cairo of a shipload of Soviet-trained and Soviet-armed Kurds en route to Iraq through the Suez Canal.

One can hardly expect the relatively isolated Kurds to be less naive about a pact with Moscow than Nasser was until the Communists turned against him. Nasser's egotism kept him from understanding that he was an amateur in intrigue, unable to cope with Moscow's professionals.

If the Kurds in their tribal innocence achieve their Kurdistan, it may be a Russian satellite. They cannot lick the professionals.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Royal Prerogative

The gathering of news is always a difficult and complicated process, for much of the news that comes to any reporter is rumor, guess and perhaps absolute falsehood. Governments seek to slant news in their own favor; so do corporations, labor unions and political parties. It takes considerable background knowledge and experience to separate the rubbish ment is being made that, unless from the seemingly correct.

Our government, since the beginning of World War II, has increased its war powers of censorship which still continue to be in force. The Pentagon and the State Department and many other agencies of government use "the royal prerogative" to keep secret from the people what they have a right to know. Actually, little of the secrecy is justified even on the grounds of military preparedness. The American people were never told about what was going on at the Manhattan Project but the Russians managed to know all about it and to steal the atom bomb with the assistance of Dr. Klaus Fuchs and the Rosen-

The suppression of information concerning the expenditures of public funds by individual Representatives and Senators is an affront to the people. It is, as Dr. Harold L. Cross has used the expression, "a barricade of secrecy against the people."

It is not profitable to keep the people uninformed or falsely informed because the course of events brings the truth to the surface sooner or later. For instance, the essence of our troubles over Berlin is the stupid arrangement among the Allies at the end of World War II for the zoning of the city among the Allies without a proper exit from the Western Powers' zones except through Russian dominated territory. The absurdity of the arrangement should have been obvious to the Allied commanders and diplomats. They arranged a bear trap for their own undoing.

It makes no sense to talk about hindsight. It was their business to have foresight. That is why they were employed. Similarly there is no use getting emotional about Tibet now. Obviously when the United States assisted the Chinese Communists to gain control because General George Marshall and his advisers disliked Chiang Kai-shek and his entourage, they paved the way for Soviet imperialism to develop in China by the use of the Chienlung line. Perhaps the youngsters who took over the Far Eastern desks in the State Department during the Roosevelt regime had never heard about the Chienlung line, but Nehru is hearing plenty about it today, namely that the Chienlung line includes territories now held by India. The Chienlung line represents the greatest expansion of Chinese imperialism in the centuries of history of that country.

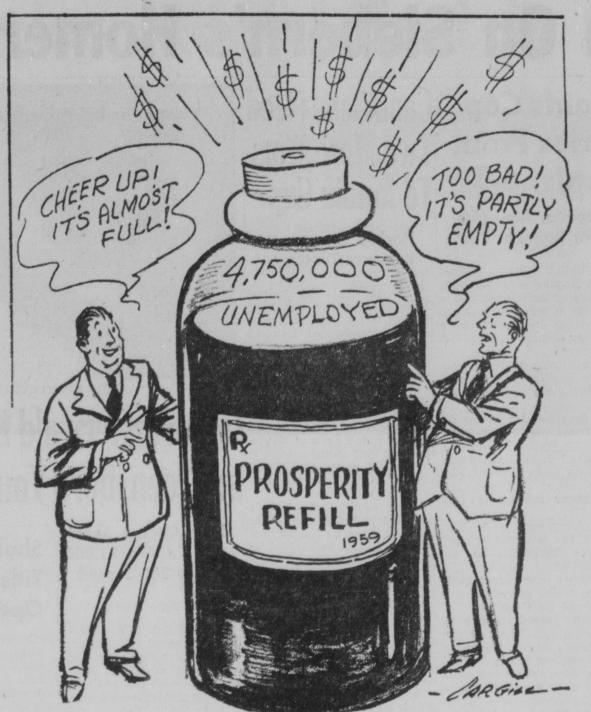

The Tibetan revolt is many months old. It has long been discussed among those closely interested in Chinese affairs, but very little was said about it in the American press. The reason is that it was not an officially reported rebellion until it was nearly over and the Dalai Lama was on his way to sanctuary in India - a sanctuary that could lead to a limited conflagration among the border states between Red China and neutral India. Really, there can no longer be any neutrality between Red China and India as Nehru undoubtedly now realizes.

Much that is either kept secret or is temporarily suppressed is confusing when it emerges to the surface. Spot news, a bulletin, a headline read on radio are of little value these days. Background exploration is essential because everything is so different from what it seems to be. The headline reader is a very confused person because what he reads is a footnote to an event in motion, often in a tumultuous motion which even those who are directing its course do not understand.

For instance, Secretary of Defense McElroy is comforted that we have not lost all in Iraq and he draws the analogy that we have not lost all in Indonesia. Extremes in temperature occur also in the temperate zone bu, they are measured in hours, days, or weeks. Deaths during these times are attributed to lack of acclimatization. Many oldsters remain at home during heat waves and cold snaps and are not exposed. Nevertheless, the mortality rate in New York, for example, is lowest in summer and highest in winter.

But whether the increased fatalities in winter stem from days or weeks of frigid weather is a moot question. The death rate munist.

There should be a place in our ways been this way. It will not daily lives for day-dreaming. It is a temporary escape from harsh realities. Rainy days are best. My mother-in-law Maggy would pick a good one, when the rain was gray and cold and slanting, and she would sit and stare silently out the window for hours.

Eventually, she would work herself up to a good cry. "What are you crying about?" I would say. Maggy would shrug. 'Nothing." Then I knew that she had been dreaming about better days. I can day-dream about anything. It will go on for ten or fifteen minutes, while I hold a sock in one hand, or watch the windshield wipers do their metronome act, or sitting over a book without seeing the words. When I was 10, I used to daydream out the school window at New York Bay. I knew every ship that left the harbor, and, while the nuns were trying to teach me how to parse a sentence, I sailed on the Berengaria, the Olympic, the old Mauretania, the Celtic, the Leviathan, and I sailed to all parts of the world in the wildest weather.

My wife was a dreamer too. She dreamed her best over a cup of tea just before the children came home from school. She sat in the kitchen, elbows on the table, a cigaret in one hand, staring at the wall. I knew that she was dreaming because, when she flicked the ashes, she often missed the tray. Too much day-dreaming isn't good. It's the mark of the neurotic malcontent. The person who is chronically unhappy dreams roll. most of the time. This, in turn, can lead to the creation of a happy little world inside the mind—a world preferable to the real one.

Always, in our aspirations, we move toward happiness. This is the goal. Most of us do not know what happiness is. We think of it a a state of ecstasy, or at least one in which there are no burdens or cares. There is no such state, this side of idiocy. The world in which we live is one of unremitting struggle. It has al-

change. Somewhere around the 14th

Century, a great Shah died and he left a testimonial for his son, "I came into this world small and weak and helpless," he said.

"I leave it laden with sin, seventy years later. In all the time between, I can recollect but fourteen days in which I was completely happy.'

That is why day-dreaming is important. It lifts the heart momentarily. The dreams take many forms with many people. My mother could day-dream about pretty curtains. I knew a man who played the same dream over and over: he was swinging a bat in Yankee Stadium and he belted the ball and it sailed out over the roof of the grandstand.

Some married women like to dream of a world in which there are no debts. A man may dream that his wife is a double for Marilyn Monroe. He returns to consciousness snarling. A teenager dreams of having his own car; a coward dreams of knocking a bully down; a million girls behind counters dream of marrying a handsome millionaire; an old man dreams of health.

The purchase of a sweepstakes ticket is a form of dreaming. The buyer tells himself that he cannot win, but he dreams of what he would do with the money, if. Millions of women who look at the giveaway shows on television are day-dreaming. They get a vicarious thrill out of watching someone else get the house furnishings, the car, or the big bank-

Most of my day-dreams are about boats. Always I am at the helm, and the seas are fair and the skies sunny. The people on the boat are interesting, and we are all off on a cruise to somewhere. We never arrive, but it doesn't matter. For a moment, the boat is a little make-believe world of its own.

Someday I'm going to close my eyes for an hour, and find out where that boat is going. . .

The Kurds' Dream And Moscow's Pros

What are the Russians up to with the Kurds in the Middle East? The Kurds are not Arabs. They occupy high mountain country in portions of Iraq, Iran and Turkey, and include many nomadic tribesmen.

They are a spectacular fighting people who seem little changed from their great ancestor. Saladin of the Crusade period. Their dream of a "Kurdistan" - a country of their own carved out of the territories of their nominal rulers is a very old one.

The Communists' encouragement of this dream isn't new, either. Moscow has always realized that the nationalist aspirations of the Kurds might some day be useful as a catspaw. What is new is the news from Cairo of a shipload of Soviet-trained and Soviet-armed Kurds en route to Iraq through the Suez Canal.

One can hardly expect the relatively isolated Kurds to be less naive about a pact with Moscow than Nasser was until the Communists turned against him. Nasser's egotism kept him from understanding that he was an amateur in intrigue, unable to cope with Moscow's profession-

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Royal Prerogative

The gathering of news is always a difficult and complicated process, for much of the news that comes to any reporter is rumor, guess and perhaps absolute falsehood. Governments seek to slant news in their own favor; so do corporations, labor unions and political parties. It takes considerable background knowledge and experience to separate the rubbish from the seemingly correct.

Our government, since the beginning of World War II, has increased its war powers of censorship which still continue to be in force. The Pentagon and the State Department and many other agencies of government use "the royal prerogative" to keep secret from the people what they have a right to know. Actually, little of the secrecy is justified even on the grounds of military preparedness. The American people were never told about what was going on at the Manhattan Project but the Russians managed to know all about it and to steal the atom bomb with the assistance of Dr. Klaus Fuchs and the Rosen-

The suppression of information concerning the expenditures of public funds by individual Representatives and Senators is an affront to the people. It is, as Dr. Harold L. Cross has used the expression, "a barricade of secrecy against the people."

It is not profitable to keep the people uninformed or falsely informed because the course of events brings the truth to the surface sooner or later. For instance, the essence of our troubles over Berlin is the stupid arrangement among the Allies at the end of World War II for the zoning of the city among the Allies without a proper exit from the Western Powers' zones except through Russian dominated territory. The absurdity of the arrangement should have been obvious to the Allied commanders and diplomats. They arranged a bear trap for their own undoing.

It makes no sense to talk about hindsight. It was their business to have foresight. That is why they were employed. Similarly there is no use getting emotional about Tibet now. Obviously when the United States assisted the Chinese Communists to gain control because General George Marshall and his advisers disliked Chiang Kai-shek and his entourage, they paved the way for Soviet imperialism to develop in China by the use of the Chienlung line. Perhaps the youngsters who took over the Far Eastern desks in the State Department during the Roosevelt regime had never heard about the Chienlung line, but Nehru is hearing plenty about it today, namely that the Chienlung line includes territories now held by India. The Chienlung line represents the greatest expansion of Chinese imperialism in the centuries of history of that country.

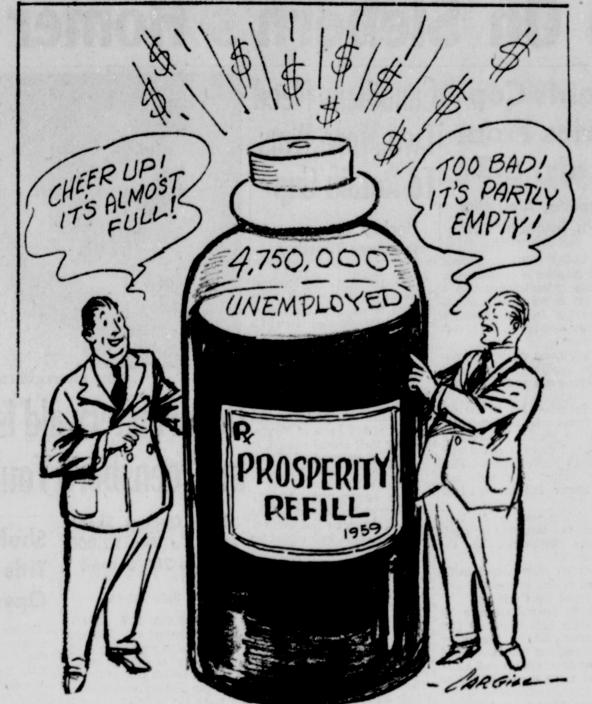

The Tibetan revolt is many months old. It has long been discussed among those closely interested in Chinese affairs, but very little was said about it in the American press. The reason is that it was not an officially reported rebellion until it was nearly over and the Dalai Lama was on his way to sanctuary in India - a sanctuary that could lead to a limited conflagration among the border states between Red China and neutral India. Really, there can no longer be any neutrality between Red China and India as Nehru undoubtedly now realizes.

Much that is either kept secret or is temporarily suppressed is confusing when it emerges to the surface. Spot news, a bulletin, a headline read on radio are of little value these days. Background exploration is essential because everything is so different from what it seems to be. The headline reader is a very confused person because what he reads is a footnote to an event in motion, often in a tumultuous motion which even those who are directing its course do not understand.

For instance, Secretary of Defense McElroy is comforted that we have not lost all in Iraq and he draws the analogy that we have not lost all in Indonesia. Neither McElroy nor anyone else can, at this moment, foretell what has been lost in either Iraq or Indonesia. The confusion in those countries produces a cloudy X-ray plate.

The complications are numerous, but the habit of both the Pentagon and the State Department to suppress information which it is not generally advantageous to suppress, in no manner helps the citizen to understand what is going on and therefore he, the citizen, is often surprised to discover his country

At 25 degrees below zero it is difficult to remain warm, even indoors, and there are problems associated with water supply, waste disposal, seasonal food shortages, and difficulties in communication and transportation. Injuries may be handled improperly because of lack of warm water, in case of illness or accidents.

A comparable situation exists in the tropics with its deserts, insects, jungles, and grasslands. Malaria, sleeping sickness, skin diseases, parasites, lethargy, and crop failures are related indirectly to high temperature, humidity, drouth, and other adverse weath-

Labor Secretary Ducks Congress

To illustrate, here are two of the latest lame duck appointments

1. Ex-Sen. Frank Barrett of Wyoming has just secured a $19,-000 job as general counsel of the Agriculture Department. In this job he is supposed to protect the interests of small farmers.

In the Senate, out of 30 votes for rural electrification, Barrett voted against REA and the small farmer 27 times. He also voted against farmers on most public power issues, twice against the school lunch/farm surplus program, and has consistently befriended the big packing companies against the farmers.

2. Ex-Congressman Antoni Sadlak of Connecticut has been made assistant manager of the Veterans Administration regional office in Hartford. Salary $11,355.

Hagerty's Low Moments

Jim Hagerty is a highly competent press secretary 90 per cent of the time. But he has his low moments

One was when he blasted the Dan Schorr story on Dulles's resignation as "about as low a form of reporting as I know of about as irresponsible reporting as I know of.'

The blast followed shortly after another low moment which Jim experienced in the Crescent Bar in Washington, when, at 1:30 a. m., he demanded service at the bar against federal law in the District of Columbia. You must sit, not stand, while drinking in the nation's capital.

When the manager insisted on serving Jim at a table, as required by law, the irate White House spokesman went outside and came back with a police lieutenant, demanding that he make the manager enforce the Latest development in this Near Eastern seesaw is a move by U.S. Ambassador Raymond Hare to increase U.S. economic aid to dictator Nasser in case Russia withdraws its support. Hare was acting under instructions from Washington. Appara tly the State Department still trusts Nasser.

Meanwhile, in Moscow the Russians were also offering him more aid and even went to the extent of stopping the migration of Jews from Rumania. This is something Nasser has raved and ranted against. So, to please him, the gates were clamped down on 150,000 Jews who still want to leave Rumania for

There should be a place in our ways been this way. It will not daily lives for day-dreaming. It is a temporary escape from harsh realities. Rainy days are best. My mother-in-law Maggy would pick a good one, when the rain was gray and cold and slanting, and she would sit and stare silently out the window for hours. Eventually, she would work herself up to a good cry.

"What are you crying about?" I would say. Maggy would shrug. "Nothing." Then I knew that she had been dreaming about better days. I can day-dream about anything. It will go on for ten or fifteen minutes, while I hold a sock in one hand, or watch the windshield wipers do their metronome act, or sitting over a book without seeing the words.

When I was 10, I used to daydream out the school window at New York Bay. I knew every ship that left the harbor, and, while the nuns were trying to teach me how to parse a sentence, I sailed on the Berengaria, the Olympic, the old Mauretania, the Celtic, the Leviathan, and I sailed to all parts of the world in the wildest weather.

My wife was a dreamer too. She dreamed her best over a cup of tea just before the children came home from school. She sat in the kitchen, elbows on the table, a cigaret in one hand, staring at the wall. I knew that she was dreaming because, when she flicked the ashes, she often missed the tray. Too much day-dreaming isn't good. It's the mark of the neurotic malcontent. The person who is chronically unhappy dreams most of the time. This, in turn, can lead to the creation of a happy little world inside the mind-a world preferable to the real one.

Always, in our aspirations, we move toward happiness. This is the goal. Most of us do not know what happiness is. We think of it a a state of ecstasy, or at least one in which there are no burdens or cares. There is no such state, this side of idiocy. The world in which we live is one of unremitting struggle. It has al-

change. Somewhere around the 14th

Century, a great Shah died and he left a testimonial for his son. "I came into this world small and weak and helpless." he said. "I leave it laden with sin, seventy years later. In all the time between, I can recollect but fourteen days in which I was completely happy."

That is why day-dreaming is important. It lifts the heart momentarily. The dreams take many forms with many people. My mother could day-dream about pretty curtains. I knew a man who played the same dream over and over: he was swinging a bat in Yankee Stadium and he belted the ball and it sailed out over the roof of the grandstand.

Some married women like to dream of a world in which there are no debts. A man may dream that his wife is a double for Marilyn Monroe. He returns to consciousness snarling. A teenager dreams of having his own car; a coward dreams of knocking a bully down; a million girls behind counters dream of marrying a handsome millionaire; an old man dreams of health.

The purchase of a sweepstakes ticket is a form of dreaming. The buyer tells himself that he cannot win, but he dreams of what he would do with the money, if. Millions of women who look at the giveaway shows on television are day-dreaming. They get a vicarious thrill out of watching someone else get the house furnishings, the car, or the big bank-

Most of my day-dreams are about boats. Always I am at the helm, and the seas are fair and the skies sunny. The people on the boat are interesting, and we are all off on a cruise to somewhere. We never arrive, but it doesn't matter. For a moment, the boat is a little make-believe world of its own. Someday I'm going to close my eyes for an hour, and find out where that boat is going. . . (Copyright, 1959 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK (UPI)—Norm Siebern, returning to the scene where he almost cost the New York Yankees the 1958 World Series, blasted an eighth-inning homer and Bob Turley hurled a two-hitter for a 3-2 opening-game victory over the Boston Red Sox Sunday in 42-degree weather.

Siebern's game-winning wallop landed in the right field bleacher and broke a 2-2 tie. The bespeciacled Yankee left fielder, whose poor fielding enabled the Milwaukee Braves to jump to a three - game - to - one lead in the World Series last fall before New York finally prevailed, slammed his homer on a 2-and-2 pitch off Tom Brewer. Dodgers Win On Demeter's 2-Run Homer

Come From Behind To Whip Cubs, 5-3

CHICAGO (UPI)-Don Demeter belted a two-run homer in the seventh inning Sunday to launch the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Demeter's clout came off starter and loser Taylor Phillips after the Cubs left hander was nicked for a single by Charlie Neal. The blow gave the Dodgers a one-run lead. They tagged Phillips earlier for two runs on a walk, a double by Max Baxes and rookie Norm Sherry's two - run double in the fourth inning. Glen Hobbie, who relieved Phillips in the eighth, was nicked for a lead-off double by Gil Hodges, who scored when Ron Fairly lined a single to left field for a 5-3 lead.

Ernie Banks provided two of three Chicago runs in the third inning when he bounced a triple off the center field wall. The blow came off starter Sandy Koufax and scored Tony Taylor and Banks came home on Walt Moryn's single to wind up the Chicago scoring for the game.

The victory went to Johnny Klippstein, who relieved Koufax in the fourth and yielded only one of the Cubs' eight hits in a threeinning stint. Clem Labine finished for the Dodgers.

Escapes Built At Ridgeley School

The Mineral County School Board, acting on requests citizens of Ridgeley, ordered and completed construction of additional escape exits at the elementary school building to be used in event of fire or other emergency. Interior improvements were made to the building as well as the new first floor doorway shown here. The fire escape to the second floor was also repaired. While residents are still urging construction of a new elementary school building, they expressed gratitude for the safety improvements to the old building.

> Sunday, April 26 The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has announced that it will put revised train schedules into effect on Sunday, April 26, in accordance with the adoption of daylight saving time in many sections of the country.

The new schedules will remain on standard time as usual with most of the changes showing just an hour's difference from the present arrival and departure

The most notable exceptions to this earlier time in the schedule include the eastbound Daylight Speedliner which is slated to arrive in Cumberland 1 hour and 3 minutes earlier at 1:47 p. m.; the eastbound Shenandoah, which will leave Cumberland 45 minutes earlier at 12:20 p. m.; the westbound Capitol Limited which will leave here at 7:40 p. m. instead of the present 8:45 p. m.; and the westbound West Virginian which will leave the Queen City Station at 1:15 p. m., just 25 minutes earlier than at

Add One Hour

The new schedule also shows that most of the early morning trains will remain on the identical time schedule now being employed by the B&O. These trains are generally eastbound

The railroad indicated it will continue to operate on standard time with all B&O station clocks showing standard times.

THE CUMBERLAND NEWS, CUMBERLAND, MD., Fire Officials Make Plans For Annual Meeting Crab Feast Set At Ocean City June 18

Proposed changes in the bylaws of the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Association were approved as state executive board members met yesterday in the LaVale Fire Hall. The proposals call for dropping the fire service training booster committee, augmenting membership in the fire training committee from five to nine, and empowering the president to remove committee members who fail to do a satisfactory job. Howard Springer, Havre de

Grace, state president, said copies of the proposals will be sent to all 282 volunteer fire units in advance of the annual convention which is scheduled June 17-19 in Ocean City. Officials explained that the plan to drop the fire service training booster committee is to eliminate duplication with the work of the fire training com-

The Mineral County School Board, acting on requests citizens of Ridgeley, ordered and completed construction of additional escape exits at the elementary school building to be used in event of fire or other emergency. Interior improvements were made to the building as well as the new first floor doorway shown here. The fire escape to the second floor was also repaired. While residents are still urging construction of a new elementary school building, they expressed gratitude for the safety improvements to the old building.

DST To Bring Changes In Rail Schedules

New Times Effective Sunday, April 26

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has announced that it will put revised train schedules into effect on Sunday, April 26, in accordance with the adoption of daylight saving time in many sections of the country.

The new schedules will remain on standard time as usual with most of the changes showing just an hour's difference from the present arrival and departure

The most notable exceptions to this earlier time in the schedule include the eastbound Daylight Speedliner which is slated to arrive in Cumberland 1 hour and 3 minutes earlier at 1:47 p. m.; the eastbound Shenandoah, which will leave Cumberland 45 minutes earlier at 12:20 p. m.; the westbound Capitol Limited which will leave here at 7:40 p. m. instead of the present 8:45 p. m.; and the westbound West Virginian which will leave the Queen City Station at 1:15 p. m., just 25 minutes earlier than at

The new schedule also shows that most of the early morning trains will remain on the identical time schedule now being employed by the B&O. These trains are generally eastbound

The railroad indicated it will continue to operate on standard time with all B&O station clocks showing standard times.

Officials of the railroad, however, said that passengers must add one hour to the arrival and departure times of all trains in
